The summit activates at 20 paid company commitments. Maximum cohort: 30 companies.

How does the programme work?

01 What happens before Amsterdam?

The company starts with a real Dutch-market question. Intake and preparation clarify objectives and assumptions, while consultancy, Dutch-market intelligence and relevant actor or partner mapping focus the work before the summit.

02 What happens on Day 1 at CRCL PARK?

The cohort enters CRCL PARK and encounters relevant Dutch actors and expertise. The purpose is to sharpen company questions, test assumptions through exchange and create useful openings for the next stage.

03 What is Day 2 - Market Action Day?

Day 2 takes companies into the wider Dutch ecosystem. Preparation and consultancy may already have identified useful directions, while Day 1 can create additional openings. Each company then pursues the path most relevant to its Dutch-market question through appropriate meetings, introductions, visits, proposition testing or market exploration. Different companies may therefore follow different Day 2 paths.

Day 2 is structured market-action time, designed to help each company act on the most relevant openings, conversations and questions.

04 What happens on Day 3 at CRCL PARK?

Participants return to CRCL PARK to interpret what happened, deepen what matters, reconnect individual market experience to the collective process and determine meaningful next steps.

05 What continues after Amsterdam?

Company-specific consultancy, relevant relationships and documented next actions continue beyond Amsterdam where appropriate.

What support surrounds the programme?

06 What does the company-specific consultancy include?

Each participating company receives up to 40 hours of company-specific consultancy connected to its own Dutch-market question. The allocation belongs to the company, not separately to each representative, and is used according to what the company question requires before, during and after Amsterdam.

- Intake and question framing
- Dutch-market intelligence relevant to the proposition
- Company-specific research and actor / partner mapping
- Contact and conversation preparation
- Meeting or introduction support where relevant
- Support positioning or presenting the company offer
- Documented follow-up and continuation

What else does my company need to know before committing?

07 How does curation work?

Relevant Dutch companies, experts, institutions and ecosystem actors are curated around the cohort and its themes. Individual company questions inform that curation where useful. Some openings are prepared in advance; others emerge once the programme is underway. The programme is designed to create the conditions in which relevant conversations, introductions and opportunities can develop, with each company following the path that becomes most useful to its Dutch-market question.

08 What are CRCL PARK and Impact Hub Amsterdam contributing?

SDBP organises and owns the programme. CRCL PARK is the circular-innovation environment the cohort enters on Day 1 and returns to on Day 3. Impact Hub Amsterdam co-designs the programme experience and helps make CRCL PARK and the wider Dutch ecosystem relevant, connected and navigable for the cohort.

Holland Circular Hotspot supports programme curation. RVO supports Dutch-side reach. SPIRIT Slovenia is co-organiser and signs the organiser documentation required for eligible SPS applications and reimbursement.

09 What should my company bring?

A real Dutch-market question, clear company and proposition information, objectives and assumptions to test, relevant partner / customer / pilot interests, and willingness to participate actively in conversations and follow-up. Come prepared for active market-development work.

Commitment & SPS support

10 What are the commitment and cancellation terms?

The participation fee is €1,500 per company and includes one representative. The summit activates at 20 paid company commitments, with a maximum cohort of 30. SDBP makes the go/no-go decision on 14 September 2026. If the summit does not activate, the participation fee is refunded in full. Once activation is confirmed, participation fees are non-refundable. If necessary, the company may substitute its named representative.

Do not book travel or accommodation before activation is confirmed. Travel and accommodation are not included in the participation fee.

11 Can SPS support the cost of participation?

Yes. Because SPIRIT Slovenia is co-organisier, eligible Slovenian micro, small and medium-sized companies may apply under the current SPS V1 voucher for co-financing of eligible costs related to the delegation.

The subsidy can cover up to 60% of eligible costs, with a minimum subsidy of €300 and a maximum of €2,000 per application.

Eligible costs currently include:

- Participation / registration fee, with SPS support for this cost capped at €300;
- Economy-class airfare;
- Qualifying accommodation or bed-and-breakfast during the delegation, plus up to one night before and one night after the official programme.

Support applies to one participant per company. Eligible costs may relate to a maximum of five days of the official programme. VAT is not eligible.

The company submits its own SPS application. SPIRIT Slovenia co-organises the delegation and signs the organiser documentation required for the SPS application and reimbursement process.
